Technical analysis

Maruti Suzuki India Ltd share prices opened flat with positive bias. We witness a sharp jump in the price in first 15 minutes of today's trading session but it pullback from higher levels and trading near its previous day high. However, we have not seeing volumes to rise with this up move, which can indicate that there is not much strength in this bullish movement. The price has now moved below it 9 EMA level, however, Supertrend indicator is still in green zone, but the gap is large between EMA & Supertrend line, which can be filled with more pullback in this stock. Thus, we recommend MARUTI 13000 PUT option.
